Join content management to your business without disrupting the way you work

You're comfortable and efficient working with your existing Back Office systems. But, you're also anxious about needing to change your processes and learn new software to take advantage of content management in your business. You don't want to risk disruption to your operation. Invu Link overcomes this concern by binding Invu Document Management to your line of business applications.

There's no need to open up multiple applications; you can scan, index, save and search for documents in Invu Document management simply using your own familiar interface(s). Human error is also eliminated by avoiding double data entry.

Invu Link brings document management into your normal business processes. It therefore embeds good working practice and regulatory conformance into day-to-day behaviour. From CRM and ERP systems to domain specific tools, Invu Link brings good practice and speed of discovery to the software you use every day.

With Invu Link, you can benefit from the features of Invu from your own line of business application. Users can focus on their key businesses, safe in the knowledge that their information and content is being managed without any new software to learn.

All your files are automatically stored in Invu Document Management's secure repository whilst allowing you to search and retrieve files quickly and easily, directly from your own business application. Whatever industry or profession you work in, Invu Link is a natural fit to help your organization embrace the benefits of effective content management.

“Ease of integration with other systems is a major consideration issue for 45% of businesses.

... those who have achieved a degree of cross departmental integration are seeing returns on their investment, both in hard dollar savings from process improvement, and soft dollar benefits such as better customer service, improved compliance and better decision making.”
